Loud sound ringtone download for android

Changing your mobile phone ringtone is one of the best ways to personalize your phone, but many people don't mind to replace the default ringtone on their devices. How many times have you heard the default iPhone ringtone in public and mistakenly thought it was yours? Fortunately, you have thousands of free options to download a new and better ringtone. Today we are going to focus on the best ringtones that sound like actual phones. Whether you're going for a vintage effect or want to imitate a ringtone from your TV, it'll do the job. 1. Universal Hollywood Phone Ring Will probably recognize this tone with lots of old TV shows. Classics such as Leave it to Beaver and Magnum P.I., along with films like Ghostbusters, used this as a ringtone for on-screen phones. It is recognizable and functional. [audio wav= [audio] 2. Classic UK Phone Ring If you prefer the European taste of classic ringtones, try this two-hole ring. It sounds a little more classy than a standard ring. [audio mp3= [audio] 3. High-Pitched Retro Ring Looking For You Can't Miss Vintage Phone Sound? This loud bell will pierce everyone's ears nearby. 4. General Retro Ring Ten doesn't have a specific phone or epoch attached to it, but features that classic phone sound however. [mp3 audio= [audio] 5. Austin Powers/Our Man Flint Phone Ring Someone here has austin ringtone permissions. Uh so register me for this- Noah Mullin (@nuna144) April 10, 2017 Want to blend in with a pseudo-secret agent? Here's the ringtone austin Powers responds to. Interestingly, it originally came from the 1966 film Our Man Flint, which had a similar vibe. [audio mp3= [audio] 6. 24's CTU Ringtone In Series 24, lead character Jack Bauer works for the Counter-Terrorist Unit, or CTU. Phones ring a lot in this series, and when they do, you hear that sound. [mp3 audio= [audio] 7. Jurassic Park 3 Satellite Ringtone Who ever thought the ringtone could be scary? In Jurassic Park 3, one of the dinosaurs swallows a cell phone. Later, the characters are afraid of being silly when they turn around and hear the phone ringing---wside dino body. You can send a few people running when they hear this one! [mp3 audio= [audio] 8. Geico Boss's Ring Ding Dong Geico is the king of funny ads, and one of the company's older sites offers a great ringtone. Gecko boss shows his boring bell guy talking about how is Geico, then the phone explodes with hoppin'beat. It makes a great ringtone even today. [mp3 audio= [audio] 9. Paul Blart: Mall Cop's Ringtone 2009 Paul Blart: Mall Cop is not the funniest movie you'll ever see, but it contains a few laughs. In the video, Paul Blart buys a cell phone but doesn't know how to change the ringtone. This causes Rasheeda My Bubble Gum to play when he gets a call that hilariously rubs off on his straight edge good vibe guy. [mp3 audio= [audio] 10. Nokia Tone We end up with perhaps the most classic mobile ringtone of all. For many people, the Nokia phone was their first mobile phone. Thus, this short tone alerted thousands of their first phone call on the go. It's pretty neat! Nokia has released several versions of this, including piano and dubstep mix, but the original beep-boop reigns supreme. [mp3 audio= [audio] More Retro Ringtones If you haven't found the classic phone tone you're looking for in the list above, don't worry. Beepzoid's vintage ringtones website has over 60 ringtones for retro pleasure. Unfortunately, they have general labels (such as Ringtone #23) and therefore it is difficult to decipher exactly the phones they emulate. We recommend that you review and find the one you like best. You might consider looking at some of the best ringtone sites, too. How to add ringtones to your phone Now that you've chosen a new retro ringtone, it's time to put it on your phone. Start by finding your favorite above, then right-click it and choose Save As. Place it somewhere on your computer for you to keep. Then the process varies depending on whether you're using Android or iOS. Ringtones for Android You have several ways to install a custom ringtone for Android. The easiest way is to use a service like Pushbullet to send files from your desktop to your phone. Alternatively, if you want, you can download ringtones directly to your phone to completely bypass using your desktop. After you download or move them, use the application to the file manager to move the MP3 files from the Downloads folder to the Ringtones folder. Anything in this folder appears in the list when you visit Settings > Sound > Ringtone. Check out there to set your new tone! If you're not using pushbullet, you can transfer files to your phone using cloud storage. Place your mp3 in Dropbox, Google Drive, or a similar service. Then use the app on your phone to export the files to the Downloads or Ringtones folder. From there, follow the same procedure as above. Finally, to do it in an old school way, connect the USB cable from your phone to your computer. Use window files or Finder to move MP3 files directly to your phone's Ringtones folder. You can then assign one one in the Settings menu. iPhone Ringtones Unfortunately, assigning ringtones on iOS is a huge pain and requires jumping through a few hoops in iTunes. We've written a complete guide to making an iPhone ringtone, so make sure you want to get the full steps. What's your new ringtone? Many people have a favorite movie soundtrack or song as a ringtone. But you can stand out using one of these retro tones. They are not for everyone, and some of the antique sounds of the phone can be quite lattice. But keeping them on your phone is a great idea when you need to go back in the past for a while. If you're a game fan, we've looked at the best retro game ringtones and notification sounds.
